Greetings!

Welcome to 2010!

This month's newsletter includes several great calls for entry with deadlines of Feb. 1, so make sure to read about them below and act quickly.

Do you have feedback about this newsletter? We'd like to hear it! Send us an email at communications@mycnyarts.org.

CRC News

On My Own Time 2010 enters its 37th year. The CRC community arts program highlights the creative skills of employees of local business who are artists "on their own time." Employees submit a work of art to the program in the spring, and a display of their work is mounted at their workplace. The art is adjudicated by OMOT judges at each workplace. A color catalog of the artwork is put together by CRC, and as a finale, all of the artwork is displayed at the Everson with a reception in the fall when the judging results are announced. At this time, CRC is looking for businesses to participate. Email OMOT@mycnyarts.org for more information. Sign up by Fri., Feb. 19 to participate in a kick-off luncheon at Saratoga Steak and Seafood on the Green on Thurs., Feb. 25.

Be an Advocate for the Arts by Visiting Albany on Feb. 24 for Arts Day

CRC Executive Director Stephen Butler is making arrangements for a Syracuse group to visit Albany on February 24 for Arts Day. (Note: Date Change- Arts Day was Feb. 2 but has been moved to Feb. 24.)

What is Arts Day? It's our day on Capital Hill.

Legislators need to see and hear from us to keep the arts in the State budget. This is your chance to meet with your legislators, voice your opinion and hear how legislators such as Assemblyman Steve Englebright and Senator Jose Serrano are working to keep the arts alive and well in New York State.

To join a group or get more information about Arts Day, email CRC Executive Director Stephen Butler or visit the NYS Arts website for Arts Day 2010.
