"Festival of Festivals" Syracuse ArtsWeek 2010

Located in the center of Syracuse during the last weekend of July, ArtsWeek combines visual and performing arts in a
"festival of festivals," including the Northeast Jazz and Wine Festival, an international jazz festival,

What's New at the Cultural Resources Council

CRC Receives Community Foundation Grant for Youth Arts Education

The CNY Community Foundation has awarded a $25,000 Strategic Partnership grant to the Cultural Resources Council of Syracuse and Onondaga County (CRC) and Partners for Arts Education (PAE). The grant will help fund necessary legal services, administration costs and the completion of existing program commitments as the CRC assumes the role of re-granter from the now dormant PAE.

CRC Executive Director, Stephen Butler expects that CRC will emerge as the area's primary conduit for children's arts funding: "Every day, we hear about austere school budgets and the impact these have on arts education. Programs considered non-essential are being cut or reduced. However, we know that the arts are essential to every child's education. The arts have been proven to support success in other academic subjects, encourage interest in school, and enhance children's school careers. CRC's goal is to directly assist schools in offering exposure to a range of arts and cultural experiences to our community's young people."

The CRC is also taking this opportunity to add arts education services to its other programs. Such services will along with the Syracuse Arts and Crafts Festival, a juried arts festival.

ArtsWeek also includes a three block long Public Art Walk that connects the various sites featuring visual art and literary activities, such as art created on the street, public art projects by and for children, projected video art (Urban Video Project), and more..

include after-school arts programming and the connection of arts organizations with area schools.

The affiliation and dissolution is expected to take two years to complete. After PAE's final audit, it will transfer its assets to the CRC, including a technology and software integration. The CRC will then establish re-grant panels in five counties, distribute funds, and survey the community to determine what arts education services are needed in each region.
